

Another Life

In another life I knew you we shared what little time there was your thoughts mine and mine yours

In another life I felt you breathe before you did inhaling and exhaling

In another life I saw with your eyes everything a brighter hue so brilliant so clear

In another life I listened with your ears every sound a note on the grand piano

In another life I felt with your hands the textures the fabrics the smooth and the rough the knitted and the sewn

In another life I knew the scent of you it was so long ago