

Star of The Sea

I fall into your eyes

twin pools of placid liquid

each a tunnel

each a doorway

the timbre of your voice envelopes me with a warmth secure

and calm

Your presence

so serene

so full of life

transforming

the light

pouring from my heart

a luminance

brilliant like the sun

Thoughts of you insinuate

my body

my skin my hair my blood

are filled with

you

my eyes your eyes

my arms your arms

my hands your hands

my legs your legs

my feet your feet

line between dreams and

waking is blurred

images of you blend with

sounds

the smell of your voice

brings tears

the taste of your eyes

a sad sensation

movement between movement within

Cascading notes

stars and valleys

flowing melodically

mountain tops

in time

spread across oceans of earth

I reach out

in the dark

for a place to hold on to

but

there is none

I slip a bit deeper

Rhythm

unlike any other

first here

then there

then you see

you are free

there is no need

for that place to hold on to

You wonder

but you already know

trying to express

what's already been said

in that moment

where time stopped

and you looked into

your own eyes